MR Khrushchev's attempt to make a U-2 out of the RB-47 has failed. If any proof were needed that the latest "border incident" was contrived, it in the Security Council when the Soviet delegate vetoed the idea of an impartial investigation. But there seems little doubt that the American - reconnaissance aircraft, despite its mysterious mission, was beyond Soviet territorial and sea limits when it was, shot down.

THE Security Council has heard both from the American and British delegates in the last two days that far more serious violations have been perpetrated by Soviet aircraft and spy-trawlers. Clearly if accusations are going to be made that American military men are taking too many chances by "buzzing" Soviet territory, it also has to be recognised that they are exercising remarkable restraint in the face of Soviet provocations near the American continent. The last thing the West wants now is for America to adopt an eye-for-an-eye policy and to go sinking a Russian trawler for every one of its planes flagrantly shot out of the skies. This is the kind of brinkmanship which can only lead to disaster. News of the Cabinet changes is given in a wide variety of banner headlines ranging from the Conservative Daily Mail's "old faces in new jobs: the big let-down" to the Daily Herald's "so it's home, sweet home: what have we done to deserve this.' The News Chronicle (Liberal) sees the most significant of the changes in the appointment of Mr Edward Heath as what it describes as "Britain's first minister for European affairs." Mr Heath, 44, former Minister of Labour, has become the government's House of Commons spokesman on Foreign Affairs with the non-departmental portfolio of Lord Privy Seal. He also holds a brief for being specially concerned with European affairs.

Moscow, July 27. A U.S. army sergeant who disappeared from Frankfurt with his wife and three children 44 days ago has defected to the Soviet Union, Tass reported

The soldier was Joseph Dutkanicz of Tujunga, California, a native of Poland who was forced to work in a Nazi slave labour camp during World War II. Tass said he had asked for political asylum.

Dutkanicz left Frankfurt, with his wife and young children to begin a 21-day furlough and was not seen again. Today's announcement by Tass was the first word since then.

Dutkanicz, a fluent Russian linguist, is a graduate of the army's tough ranger commando course. The army identified him as a supply sergeant but refused to answer questions about his background.

The official government newspaper izvestia today published a letter it said it received from Dutkanicz explaining why he broke with the Western world at the end of June.

The court was told yesterday that Mrs Hill shot her husband with the muzzle of a gun only inches from his chest. There had been trouble between them and Hill had been turned out of the bungalow earlier,

EVIDENCE

The prosecution submitted that there was evidence that Mrs Hill had intended to shoot her husband if he came to the bungalow again.

Mr M. King-Hamilton, defending, said: "It is a common ground that Mrs Hill shot Dennis Hill, but what she says is that when she did it she was acting in self-defence," the evidence of self-defenc was "almost overwhelming." he

Mrs Hill told the court earlier today that the first month of her marriage to Dennis Hill had been quite happy, but after that it began to deteriorate after she had suggested he was spending too freely.

He attacked her and put a towel round her neck, and then attacked her son, who had tried to distract hlm.

London, July 27. Stocks were on the downtrend mainly in unsettled markets today, but gold mining shares and dollar stocks moved against the trend.

The heavy rate of bank loan shown in the mid-July figures helped keep buyers on the sidelines and industrials fell back on a broad front. Leaders' like Imperial Chemical Industries, Dunlop, Courtaulds and Vicking moved into lower ground but internationally favoured Unilever and Philips Lamps met demand and went ahead. Motors were a dull section and engineerings lost as did stores and ground papers.

world output expected

London, July 27. World rice production in munist China, is expected to set a new record at 138 million tons (paddy), according to the Commonwealth Economic Committee's July report issued today.

It said harvests in Japan and Indonesia touched new high levels while those in India, Pokistan and the Philippines were near-records. Bumper were reported from Brazil and other South American countries.

Exports of rice so far recorded in 1960 were higher than a year ago with Buina's shipments particularly high. Egypt has reappeared as a significant exporter, the report said.

shipments from the United States reflected large deliveries under Public Law 480, allowing surplus disposal for local currencies.

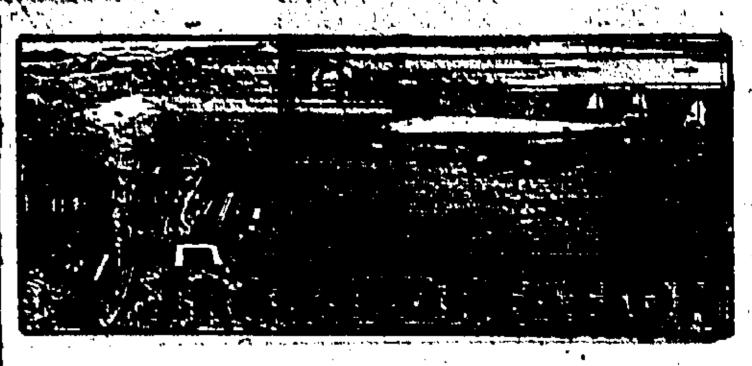

The committee said prices of most grades of This rice were higher in mid-June than 4 month earlier and Cambodian prices improved during the month. Milled rice prices in the United States showed slight downward tendency, the report said,—UPI.

L'LECTRONIC methods of controlling the world's airways and coping with increasing traffic density while still strengthening the safety factor underlie many of the electronic exhibits which will be seen at the 1960 Flying Display and Exhibition at Farnborough in September.

Several of the firms exhibiting under the flag of the Electronic Engineering Association will show new methods of aircraft control, in which the complexities of traffic are simplified for the ground controllers.

At busy terminals on international routes, traffic density is already acute and is threatening to limit the expansion of air services.

Among the electronic exhibits of the purely routine work of the controller, presenting him with a "cleaned-up" picture of the situation containing only the essential information on which he must base his decisions. British firms have predominated in this form of information handl-

Tokyo, (By Airmail).

A ceasefire has been sounded in the months-old battle between striking coal miners and the management of the Miike mines in Omuta, Kyushu, thus averting a full-scale battle between riot police and strikers—at least for the time being. Whether the ceasefire will be really effective remains to be seen.

unions had dug in behind barbed ernment will have at least four wire barricades and sand-bag years in office—and if strong walls in preparation for a battle police action became necessary with thousands of riot police who They walked in unnoticed-and had been called in to enforce a court injunction which forbade the strikers to enter mine property or to interfere with 5,000 miners who went back on the job in March.

A pitched battle between the miners and police could have resulted in a major crisis for the new government of Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda. And so immediately after Ikeda and his Cabinet had attended attestation ceremonies at the Imperial Palace the Premier, so- without allowing his ministers time for lunch, called an emer-Milke problem.

ELECTIONS

General elections are expected to be held in October or November-and the one thing Ikeda did not want in the first week of his interim government was a unionpolice battle.

His Labour Minister was told: Prevent violence at Miike in any way possible. The Central Labour Relations Board was called in and proposed a wielding policemen, fought Prince Philip grinned and said one-week truce, during which pitched battle in the street. "Of course." or the company. PREVENT VIOLENCE

Sohyo, the major trade union federation in Japan, which has been supporting the strikers. has said it could only agree to a proposal if it included the provision that not one miner was to be dismissed. In view of the fact that the strike originally began because Mitsui wished to dismiss several hundred miners for financial reasons, it is unlikely that the company will agree to any proposal which contained this

In addition, 5.000 miners who went back to work in March have formed a second union. They are opposed to the truce and are expected to oppose any "soft" agreement with strikers. There is the possibility that they may go on strike. HIGGS ACHIEVES SEASON'S THIRD HAT-TRICK

London, July 27. The principal honours went to bowlers in the County Cricket Championship matches which began today.

The most devastating display was at Blackpool, where 23-year-old Lancashire pace bowler Ken Higgs turned the tide against Essex with the season's third hat-trick.

Doug Insole (105) and Trevor Bailey (82) had put Essex in a commanding position when Higgs started the Lancashire recovery by bowling Insole, who had been at the wicket 225 minutes.
